Inland Private Capital Corporation Announces Executive Team Promotions

Three REISA members and Inland Private Capital Corporation (IPCC) employees have been promoted to the company's senior management team. Effective November 13, the company has promoted Keith Lampi to the position of Chief Operating Officer (COO), Rahul Sehgal to Chief Investment Officer (CIO) and Joe Binder to Senior Vice President of Acquisitions.

Keith Lampi has been with IPCC for more than 10 years and serves on the company's board of directors. As COO, Lampi will continue to manage the company's capital raising initiatives and will oversee the company's new operations, marketing and investor relations group, which will focus on all investor-related functions.

Rahul Sehgal has been with IPCC for more than eight years and serves on the company's board of directors. As CIO, Sehgal will continue to oversee the company's asset management function and will also integrate the asset management and acquisition functions of IPCC's business into one department focused on real estate analytics.

Joe Binder has been with IPCC for nearly five years and will continue to oversee acquisition underwriting, due diligence and financing associated with new property acquisitions. Binder will also continue to manage the structuring and preparation of new offering memoranda.
